JENKINTOWN LAW FIRM NAMED BUSINESS OF THE YEAR BY EASTERN MONTGOMERY COUNTY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

JENKINTOWN, PA The law firm of Semanoff, Ormsby Greenberg & Torchia, LLC, located in Jenkintown, has been named Business of the Year by the Eastern Montgomery County Chamber of Commerce. Established in 1985, the firm is counsel to many local businesses and has been recognized for its standard of excellence and commitment to Montgomery County.

We are very proud to receive the EMCCC Business of the Year Award because it validates what we always believed was true, that is, that our firm is widely known and respected for its quality legal services and excellent legal advice, said Partner Michael J. Torchia.

The firm handles virtually any matter a business may confront, including buying and selling businesses, buying, selling and leasing real estate, intellectual property licensing, defending against employment discrimination claims and all types of commercial litigation. Clients include local, regional, national and international entities ranging from publicly held corporations to nonprofit corporations and small business ventures, including partnerships.

Three Chamber members nominated the firm for the award: Goldenberg Rosenthal LLP and Kreisler Miller, both prestigious accounting firms, and Joseph Gennett of Philadelphia Private Bank. It was then voted on by a selection committee.

This is really very nice and somewhat unusual that three different members nominated them for the award, said Wendy Klinghoffer, EMCCC Executive Vice President. One member said they nominated the law firm because of their commitment to Eastern Montgomery County, proven expertise and high standard of ethics. "

Klinghoffer said the firm's partners Harold Semanoff, Charles W. Ormsby Jr., Howard N. Greenberg and Michael J. Torchia, are dedicated community members and strong supporters of the Chamber. In addition to financially sponsoring events like the annual Best of the Burbs and the Business Expo, they regularly participate in Chamber activities. Semanoff is a dedicated Chamber volunteer and he serves as Secretary of its Board of Directors.

Torchia is also a regular speaker on employment law topics in the community and Greenberg has served as a lecturer for other attorneys at continuing legal education programs. Ormsby serves on the Abington Memorial Hospital Business Advisory Board and runs the High School Youth Group at St. Vincent de Paul Church in Richboro, Pa.

Over the past 21 years the firm has grown from three employees to 36, including 17 attorneys, growing not only in size, but scope and expertise during this time. Many clients choose Semanoff, Ormsby, Greenberg & Torchia because they feel other, many times, larger firms, do not give them the attention they deserve, Torchia explained.

We believe in being easily accessible and responsive to our clients and we look to become long-term partners by providing large firm sophistication at competitive prices, Torchia said.

Clients look for stability and want to know that when they call, someone will answer the telephone or respond in a timely way and are familiar with their business and past issues so they don't have to start from scratch with every issue. "

By assisting businesses accomplish their goals in accordance with the law and in the most effective way possible, the law firm of Semanoff, Ormsby, Greenberg & Torchia helps businesses prosper.

The firm's standard of excellence, ethics and expertise has been recognized by Martindale-Hubbell, the world's leading directory of lawyers and law firms, which has awarded it the highest rating (AV). It has also been selected to appear in the Bar Register of Preeminent Lawyers, a national publication listing only law firms that have been designated by their colleagues as preeminent in their field.
